

ALTIRAS OFFERS A SOLUTION FOR SLOP OIL

Refineries turn crude oil into useful products like gasoline and diesel. When they close, they often need to clear out excess materials by mixing them in tanks, creating difficult-to-sell product blends. Altiras faced this issue when buying 35,000 barrels of problematic product from a shutdown refinery. It was high in organic chlorides, unsuitable for truck loading, and lacked processing equipment on-site. This left Altiras with a challenging decision: dispose of it, process further, or find a buyer willing to accept its limitations.

THE ALTIRAS SOLUTION

Altiras provides a unique and environmentally-friendly solution for companies that have waste materials, including refineries. We pay the customer to recycle their waste materials, making it a mutually beneficial arrangement.

In addition to paying our clients for their waste materials, we clean the site to ensure that we leave it in a safe and environmentally-friendly condition. This helps our customers avoid any potential liability or environmental concerns that may arise from the presence of waste materials on their site.

Altiras also covers all transportation costs and processing expenses associated with the waste materials, further reducing the client's costs and responsibilities. We have experience working with multiple refineries and their combined products, and can handle each client's unique requirements.

RESULTS

Overall, Altiras offers a comprehensive and cost-effective solution for customers who want to recycle their waste materials. We design our approach to make the recycling process as hassle-free as possible by taking care of all aspects of the process from transportation to site cleaning. If you're looking for a solution to manage your waste, Altiras can help.
